“The social educator is an education professional whose basic function is the creation of an educational relation that enables the person to take charge of his own life.

Moreover, in all his socioeducational actions he will start from the conviction and responsibility that his professional task is to assist the person, the group and the community so that they can improve their quality of life.”

INTRODUCTION

This is an explanatory guide to the way in which the Centre for Legal Studies and Specialised Training (CEJFE) conceives and structures the specialised training of social educators in the field of correctionals.

The guide contains the basis of the annual training programmes which make up the specialised training available at the Centre for this group of professionals.

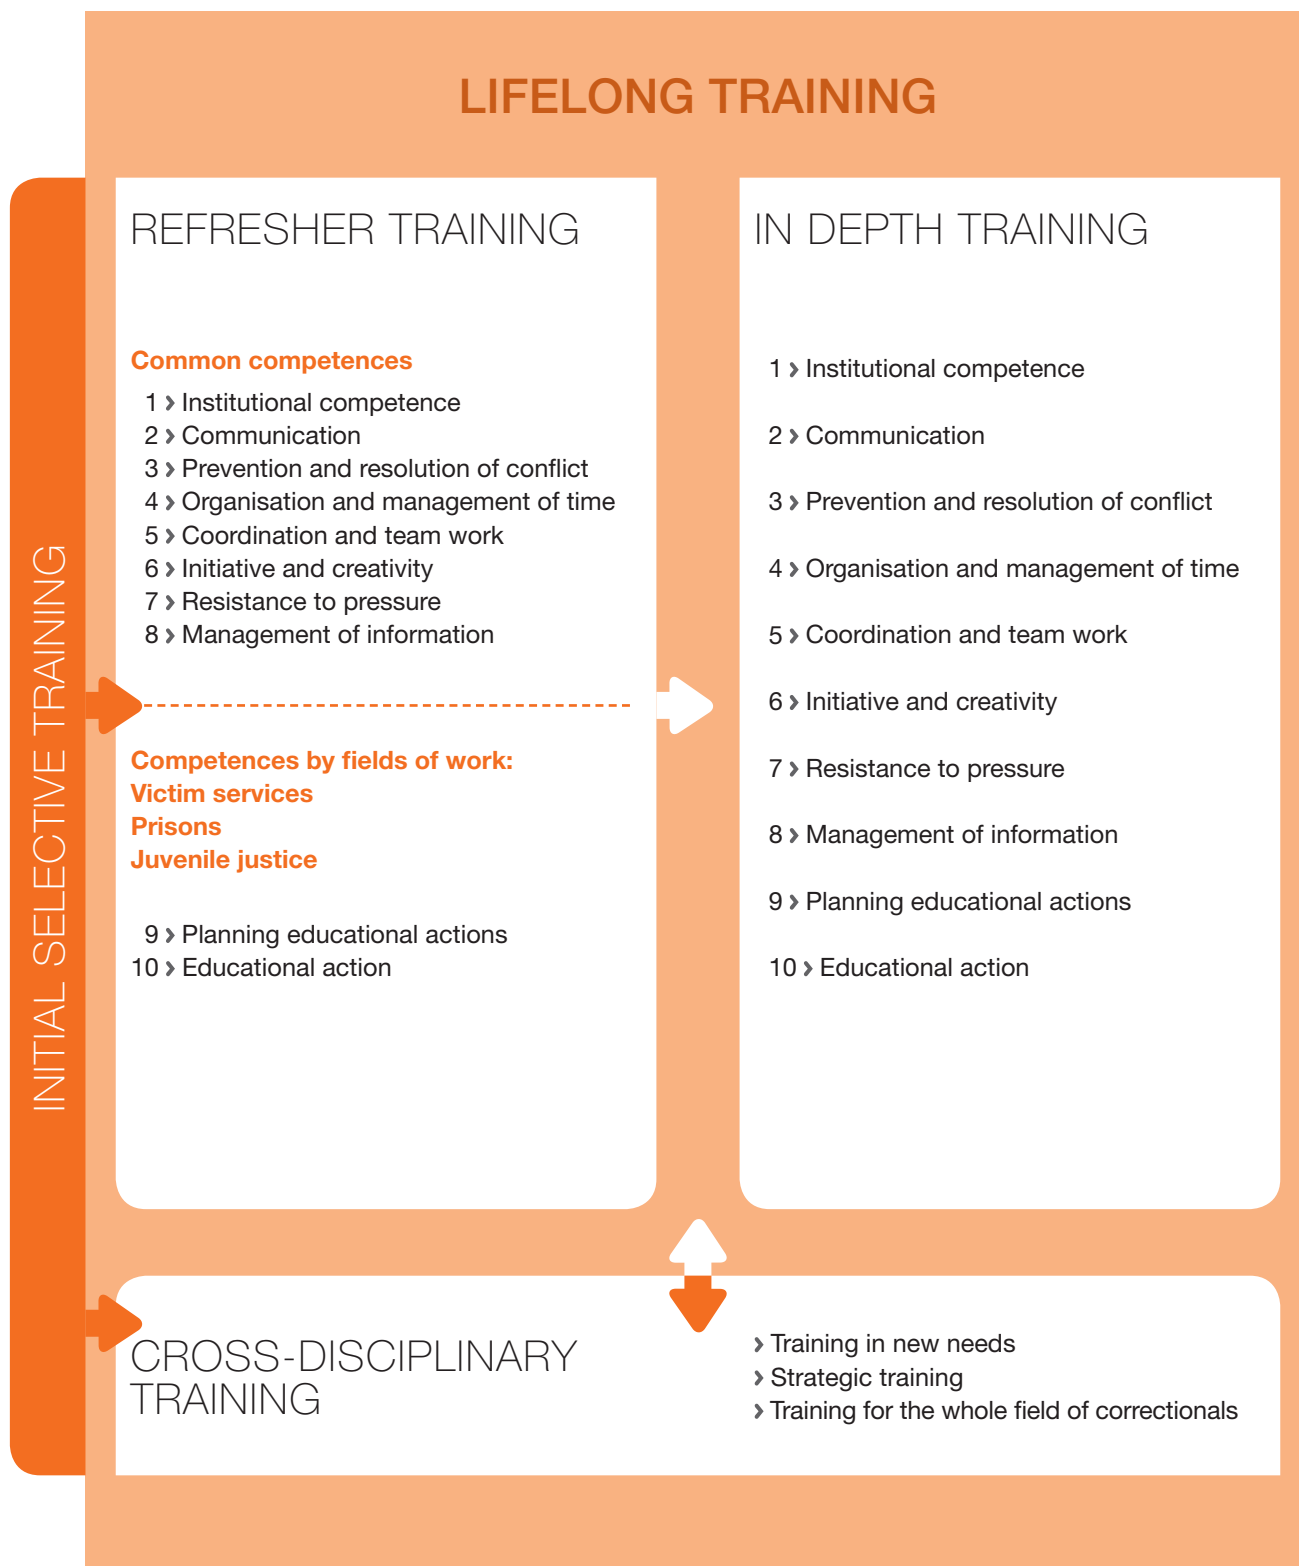

The specialised training of the social educators is based on 5 basic principles:

1. Permanent consideration of human rights and international recommendations for training staff working in the field of correctionals.
2. The social educators' mission in this field of work:
 - › To detect the socioeducational needs of the persons assigned to them and draft an individual intervention programme for each of them in coordination with the other professionals on the multidisciplinary team.
 - › To intervene in order to channel the needs detected through the animation of groups or individually, so that the person can improve his chances of social reintegration.
 - › To give information about each case and its evolution to the corresponding legal and administrative authorities.
3. Adaptation of the training to the requirements of the work place from the perspective of excellence (professional competence).
4. The willingness of service of the Social and Criminological Research and Training Department of the CEJFE, in order to adapt the specialized training to the changing needs of the Prison, Probation and Juvenile Justice Services, and promote their strategic projects.
5. A commitment to improvement, updating and innovation which means that this guide is in permanent evolution.

Moreover, we should point out that the reference framework for the planning and implementation of the training activities included in this guide is the current regulation of training set out in the following documents:

- › General agreement on the working conditions of the staff in the field of application of the general negotiating table of the administration of the Catalan government.
- › Agreement on the working conditions of prison staff.
- › Catalan lifelong training fund.

STRUCTURE OF THE TRAINING

SPECIALISED TRAINING

Selective initial training

The incorporation of any professional into the field of correctionals requires specialised initial training. This is based on the professional competences contained in this document. Its purpose is for social educators to acquire the knowledge, procedures and attitudes that make them competent at their work place. The initial training has the following basic structure:

- › One theoretical and practical block, with different subjects, which develops the contents that make it possible to acquire the knowledge necessary for carrying out the tasks of social educators in the field of correctionals.
- › One work procedures block, to work on the professional competences of social educators from an eminently practical perspective.

Lifelong training

Refresher training for common competences

Refresher training for common competences consists of 8 activities for all the social educators working in the field of correctionals, which are:

1. Institutional competence
2. Communication
3. Prevention and resolution of conflict
4. Organisation and management of time
5. Coordination and team work
6. Initiative and creativity
7. Resistance to pressure
8. Management of information

All the social educators are advised to carry out the training activities that make up this block or to select the ones in which they have no previous training or need a refresher.

Refresher training for competences by fields of work

Refresher training for competences by fields of work consists of a variable number of training activities that deal with the following competences:

9. Planning educational actions
10. Educational action

These activities have quite specific contents, closely linked to practice in a specific field of work. By fields of work we mean: victim services, prisons and juvenile justice.

Victim services

9. Assessment of needs and drafting of an intervention plan
10. Intervention with the victim

Prisons

9. Planning educational actions
 - 9.I. A structured assessment of educational needs
 - 9.II. Design and planning the individual treatment programme and the group activities
10. Educational action
 - 10.I. Individual intervention
 - 10.II. Group animation, rehabilitation programmes and curricular itineraries

Juvenile justice

9. Planning educational actions
 - 9.I. A structured assessment of educational needs of the juveniles
 - 9.II. Design and planning the individual implementation programme and the group activities
10. Educational action
 - 10.I. Individual intervention and tutorial sessions
 - 10.II. Group animation and educational action in groups, rehabilitation programmes and curricular itineraries. Centre educational project

All social educators working at one of the postings indicated are advised to follow the courses specific to their posting or area.

In depth training

This consists of a variable number of training activities or ideas for looking in greater depth into the basic competences whether cross disciplinary or specific to the field of work the social educator may occupy.

The contents are mainly procedural (learning to do). For example, this guide suggests some in depth activities for each competence, which appear in the last section of the files for each of the basic activities.

It is advisable to carry out the in depth activities concerning a particular competence on completion of the refresher training course.

Cross-disciplinary training

Training focusing on new needs

This is the annual programme that provides a response to a change in the work context that requires training (legislative or regulatory change, change in the profile of the population, etc.).

Strategic training

This goes with the strategic projects of the management centres that require training for their introduction.

Training focusing on new needs and strategic training usually consist of activities aimed at a particular group of professionals, and it is each directorate that decides which persons have to do them.

Cross-disciplinary training for the whole field of correctionals

Moreover, the training programmes of the Social and Criminological Research and Training Department may provide training activities with generic contents of interest to any professional in the field of correctionals, which are offered as free choice activities.

The aim of the training activities that deal with each competence is for the students to perform the behaviours associated with it and attain the knowledge, capacities and aptitudes that go to make it up.

Next, for each professional competence (common or associated with a field of work), there is a list of the files that define the objectives and the contents of the refresher and in depth training activities related to each competence (usually a standard length of 20 hours each).

A large orange graphic element consisting of a semi-circle on the left and a rounded rectangle on the right, containing the title text.

Training activities for common competences

1. INSTITUTIONAL COMPETENCE

Give a reasoned explanation of the specific work environment: legislative, regulatory and ethical framework, profiles of the user population, range of professionals involved and team tasks, and work processes and procedures specific to the social educator in the field of correctionals. Show a positive attitude or predisposition to carry out the professional task in this environment.

Behaviours associated with the competence

- › Assuming the mission of the institution and making it a guide for one's own professional actions.
- › Showing a critical but constructive attitude towards the institution.
- › Accepting that the educational function in the framework of the implementation of sentences and measures entails a major control role.
- › Fulfilling the professional commitments agreed with others (managers, colleagues or users). Not undertaking anything that cannot be accomplished.
- › Making contributions to the improvement of the institutional processes.
- › Using the institutionally established documents (protocols, templates, indicators guide, etc.).
- › Preserving the confidentiality of the data.
- › Treating the users with respect at all times and guaranteeing their rights and duties, and being aware of the institutional image projected.
- › Adapting the professional task to new situations (changes of programme, profile of the user population, legislative framework, new priorities and strategic objectives, etc.).
- › Attending periodic training activities and refresher courses.
- › Clearly recognising one's own professional space and respecting the professional space of others.
- › Being receptive to constructive criticism of one's own actions and being willing to undertake measures to improve them.

Training in institutional competence

Objectives

Give a reasoned explanation of the specific work environment: legislative, regulatory and ethical framework, profiles of the user population, range of professionals involved and team tasks, and work processes and procedures specific to the social educator in the field of correctionals. 7. RESISTANCE TO PRESSURE

Work with efficacy in the face of environmental pressure, hostility or stress generated in the intervention itself or in the relation with the other professionals. Control emotional reactions and behaviour, avoiding impulsive or hasty responses, and to resist the frustration that often occurs in complex contexts.

Behaviours associated with the competence

- › Adapting the professional intervention to the real possibilities (not trying to go beyond what is possible) and assuming the conditions of the environment where the intervention takes place and the professional limits.
- › Seeking support from the immediate command or other members of the team in difficult cases.
- › Asking the command and/or accepting the participation of other professionals in the case, or a change of professional, when he or she is considered emotionally incapable of continuing.
- › Anticipating the reaction of the user in difficult situations: foreseeing it and preparing strategies.
- › Situating the difficult situations and/or relapses of the case as part of the process of intervention and not living them negatively.
- › Knowing how to maintain the criterion and professional distance despite the emotional pressure, tiredness or other factors of stress.
- › Looking for supervision spaces.
- › Obtaining training resources that make it possible to perform the professional task better and thus reduce anxiety and pressure.
- › Identifying situations that may cause stress (personal) realistically and looking for and using mechanisms to avoid or reduce it.
- › Circumscribing conflicts exclusively to the work environment.
- › Maintaining emotional and behavioural self-control.

Training in resistance to pressure

Objectives

Work with efficacy in the face of environmental pressure, hostility or stress generated in the intervention itself or in the relation with the other professionals. Control emotional reactions and behaviour, avoiding impulsive or hasty responses, and to resist the frustration that often occurs in complex contexts.

Refresher training

Contents

1. Factors that generate pressure
 - 1.1. The environment and the organisation
 - 1.2. Interaction with users
 - 1.3. Interaction with other professionals
 - 1.4. Individual factors
2. Analysis of personal factors for coping with pressure

- › Identify and minimise the effects of stress
- › The intervention adapted to the possibilities of the institution
- › Professional self-healing
- › Techniques of self-control

8. MANAGEMENT OF INFORMATION

Obtain information from different sources, discriminate what is relevant in accordance with the objectives established and draw the proper conclusions. Explain and transmit the information clearly and concisely, through speaking or writing.

Behaviours associated with the competence

- › Identifying the purpose of the information in each case before starting the process of looking for and ordering it. According to the purpose, think what the relevant information to be gathered is.
- › Not looking for information about subjects that unnecessarily invade the privacy of the person and/or have nothing to do with the professional sphere or the objective of the search for information.
- › Using different sources for gathering the information (carrying out interviews with users, coordination with other professionals of the institution, observation of certain behaviours, etc.).
- › Collecting and analysing documents. Reviewing the information in the users' files.
- › Cross-checking the information.
- › Analysing the information relating to the crime objectively, not allowing it to condition the professional action.
- › Persevering in the search for information even though it may be difficult to obtain.
- › Preparing and developing the interviews properly: arrange the day, time and place, set the objectives, prepare a script and manage the time well.
- › Informing the interlocutor of the objective of the search for information.
- › Respecting the interlocutor at all times and relating to him while being aware of the institutional image that is being projected.
- › Adapting the communicative register to the characteristics of the receiver of the information.
- › Classifying the information obtained as "relevant" and "irrelevant" according to the purpose for which it has been sought.
- › Collecting the information obtained which is both relevant and appropriate and the sources of information in writing in a synthetic, clear and orderly manner.
- › Being discreet and respectful in the handling of the information.
- › Passing on the information with rigour and objectivity in the face of any change in the user's situation.
- › Informing without emitting unnecessary value judgements.
- › Preserving the confidentiality of the information according to legal and ethical criteria.
- › Stating the sources of information in the reports.
- › Not reiterating a demand for information which is already there.
- › Coordinating the gathering of information with the other professionals.

Training in management of information

Objectives

- › Workshop in speaking techniques
- › Speaking in public
- › Communication by telephone
- › Practical methodology in the drafting of reports
- › Linguistic criteria and terminology in the legal field

Training activities by fields of work

9. PLANNING EDUCATIONAL ACTIONS

Design, monitor and assess educational programmes and actions aimed at individuals or groups, starting from the detection of educational needs.

Behaviours associated with the competence

- › Differentiating the users' explicit demands from their real needs.
- › Rechannelling disperse or inappropriate demands.
- › Avoiding standard assessments individualise.
- › Giving priority to the user's needs.
- › Formulating, structuring and timing educational objectives in accordance with the needs detected and the length of the measure.
- › Involving the users in the drafting of the educational programme they will be taking part in.
- › Selecting the relevant strategies and group and/or individual activities in accordance with the process required by each person or group.
- › Adapting the planning of the intervention to the time of the judicial procedure.
- › Selecting the resources (material, functional...) necessary to achieve the objectives.
- › Foreseeing the assessment of the plans or educational actions (instruments, moments).
- › Periodically reviewing the work plan established and the commitments acquired with the users and adapting the objectives and the actions according to the changes that have occurred.
- › Coordinating with the other professionals involved in the planning or development of the programmes.
- › Detecting and planning the end of the professional action. Giving the user a progress report.
- › In the case of victim servicers, being flexible in carrying out the interviews in accordance with their specific emotional state and adapting the intervention to this reality at all times.
- › In the case of victim servicers, reaching flexible agreements that are adapted to possible critical events.

Training in planning educational actions

Assessment of needs and drafting of an intervention plan

Objective

Assess the needs of individual victim services and design intervention plans.

Refresher training

Contents

10. EDUCATIONAL ACTION

Run educational actions –individual and/or in groups– using strategies for motivation, animation and socioeducational participation.

Behaviours associated with the competence

- › Explaining clearly to the users the planned actions and their objectives, while agreeing on commitments.
- › Interacting with the users while maintaining a proper professional distance.
- › Offering support and emotional containment.
- › Involving the user and permanently reinforcing that involvement and participation.
- › Valuing the user, while reinforcing his qualities and contributions.
- › Using examples of close cases of positive and negative evolution to reinforce the orientation of the case.
- › Generating a positive climate of relations.
- › Giving sound arguments and cross-checked information.
- › Integrating the appropriate initiatives and proposals of the user into the plan of action.
- › Giving feedback for advances and relapses.
- › Maintaining the orientation of the assistance in spite of negative processes or relapses, and looking for new elements of motivation and work.
- › Showing oneself to be persevering in the objectives and agreements established.
- › Maintaining an active and dynamic attitude in the interaction with the group.
- › Appraising the situations periodically and having the capacity to improvise while looking for alternatives, and taking rapid decisions to rechannel them when necessary.
- › Redirecting the user's demands in accordance with the real needs and the objectives set.
- › Informing clearly, if necessary, of the consequences of the breaches of the commitments acquired.
- › Conducting the interviews with flexibility according to the emotional state of the victim and adapting the intervention to that reality at all times.
- › Letting the user speak and maintaining active listening.
- › Keeping in mind the framework of willingness of the victim: asking for his or her agreement in all decisions or steps to be taken, not intervening beyond what he or she accepts.
- › When the victim requires psychological support, conducting the interview to make him or her aware of this need.
- › In the case of care for victims, maintaining a tone of voice, a posture and a non-verbal language that convey tranquillity, confidence and openness.
- › Explaining clearly what the services that can be offered to the victims are and maintaining an attitude of attention to their demands.
- › Not doing very long interviews, limiting the time beforehand and guiding them to the objective set with flexibility, valuing the receptiveness of the victim.
